Wednesday, February 12. 1718.

Hague, February 15.

'THE Minister of the King of Prussia 'hath been in Conference with the 'Deputies of their High Mightinesses; and after it was over, he presented a Memorial, which contains in Substance, That having made Report to the King his Master of the Resolution of their High Mightinesses, Jan. 6. importing, that because the Marquis de Prie made Difficulty of admitting his Majesty's Resident at Brussels, the Sieur Soert de Borchenfeld, to the Conferences upon the Differences arisen upon the Barrier-Treaty, they wish that this Affair may be remitted to the Hague, in order to confer there with the Ministers of the Emperour and his Prussian Majesty, after it has been prepar'd at Brussels; he hath received Orders to declare, that his Majesty has the same good Inclinations to terminate the Differences arisen upon the 18th Article of the said Barrier Treaty; but he does not comprehend what their High Mightinesses understand by these Words, ----- After the Affair has been prep[illegible] Brussels, in the Conferences which shall be th[illegible]d --; and desires them to be pleas'd to explain themselves thereupon. But in the mean time, he hopes they do not intend to regulate the Points disputed with the Marquis de Prie, without communicating it before-hand, either to his Majesty or to his Minister, as was done at the time of the making the Barrier Treaty, seeing that in such Case, his Majesty must declare, that he will not be any ways bound by what shall be treated on or concerted thereupon without his Privity; and that he shall maintain his Right against every thing that may be done to his Prejudice, as he did before against the 18th Article of the Barrier Treaty.

'The Conferences that have been held between the Deputies of their High Mightinesses and the Minister of France at his own House, as also with the Danish Minister, and with the Swedish Secretary, at the Apartments of their High Mightinesses, have all turn'd upon the Sea Armament that is intended for the Baltick. The said Deputies having represented to these Ministers respectively, the Necessity of that Equipment for preventing further Losses, and for repairing those the Subjects of the States have already suffer'd by the Steps taken by Denmark and Sweden.

'In the mean time, their High Mightinesses having agreed to the Sentiments of the States of Holland, that for the future Security of the Trade in the Baltick Sea, a Squadron of 30 Men of War ought immediately to be equip'd, they desir'd the Council of State to draw up without Delay a Petition for the Amount of the Expences thereof, which the said Council have worthily acquitted themselves of, in demonstrating to the States of the respective Provinces, (whose Consents are expected) the absolute Necessity of this Expence. To which purpose they have represented, the small Extent of this State in Comparison of those adjoining to it; the burdensome Expence of maintaing the Dykes and Sea-Coasts; the Barrenness of their Land, which affords Subsistance but for a very small part of the People; All which makes it necessary to find out by Navigation, Fishery, Trade and Manufacturies, Subsistance for the greatest part of the Inhabitants; wherefore Freedom for importing Materials for Manufacturies, and Freedom for exporting those Manufacturies must necessarily be preserv'd. But the Breach which the Northern Potentates have often made in this Freedom of the Commerce of Holland has been such, that since the War in the North, their 'Trade has been the Prey of the Parties in that 'War, whereby about 300 Ships have been last 'Year unemploy'd, and the Number will encrease 'if a Remedy be not speedily apply'd to it. From 'all which the Council of State concludes, that 'the total Ruin of the State is annex'd to that of 'Trade, and both are unavoidable unless Trade 'and Navigation be protected from the Violence 'and Prejudice which Foreigners do to it. And 'that Protection being the End and only Object of 'this Equipment, it cannot draw upon the State 'any unhappy Consequence, as some would insinuate; seeing it is founded upon the Law of Nature, and upon the common Practice of all Nations, which is to repel Force by Force, tends only to the Maintenance of the Law of Nations, and no ways to the Breach of Treaties; the rather, because the Violences and Prejudices aboveſaid could not hitherto be prevented, notwithstanding all the amicable Offices which have been made use of with extream Patience.

'They remark further, that even altho' the Applications made to the Courts concerned should 'have their Effect, and Freedom of Commerce 'from these Provinces to the Baltick Sea, should 'be entirely restored, the Equipment in Question 'would nevertheless be of the last Importance; in 'Regard that the Maritime Affairs are in great Disorder thro' the Impotency of the Admiralties, 'which by this means will be in some manner restor'd, for the publick Benefit in all Events.

'For these Purposes, the Council of State has 'deliver'd to their High Mightinesses the following Calculation of the Expences of this Equipment, which ought to be supplied out of the Taxes and Imp[illegible]ons to which Trade it self is subject.

'A Calculation of the Expences of 30 Men of War, with their Contingencies for the Space of Seven Months.

Ships	Guns		Men
1	of 90	- - - - - - -	550
6	of 72	each 400 Men	2400
